TO BURY COOLIDGE IN SHADOW OF BIRTHPLACE

One Who Rose From Farm
Boy To President To Be Returned to the Earth

OFFICIALS TO ATTEND

By David P. Sentner
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 7.—(INS)—Calvin Coolidge, who rose from farm boy to President, will be returned to the good earth today.

Following a brief funeral service in the Massachusetts town where his political fortune began, the remains of the thirtieth American president will be transported to Plymouth, Vt., his birthplace.

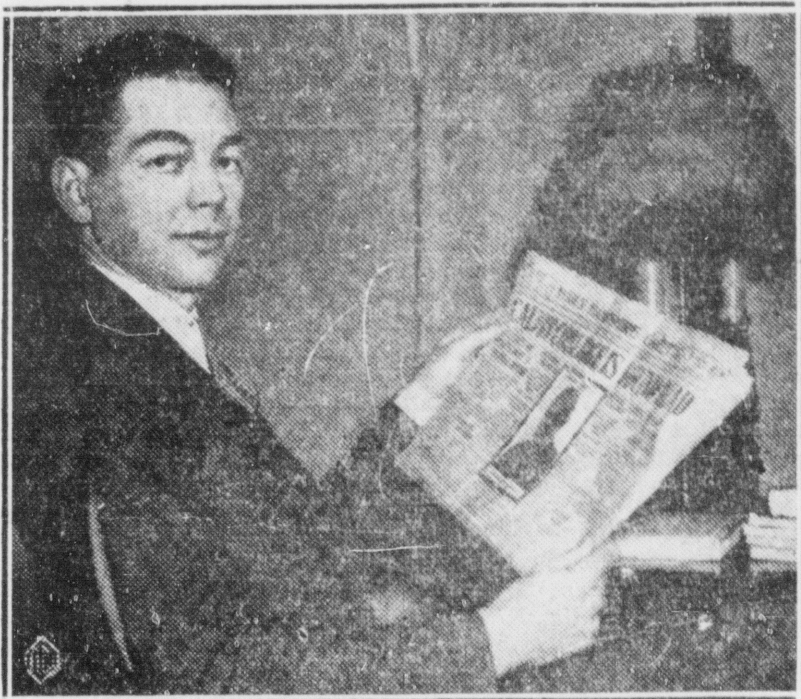

In the shadow of the spot where he was born sixty years ago, Coolidge will be buried in the family graveyard. It is rocky soil hallowed with the bones of six generations of Puritan ancestors, a resting place older than the country he served in silent wisdom.

He will lie between the graves of his father, John Coolidge, and his son, Calvin Coolidge, Jr., both of whose deaths saddened his days in the White House.

Elipsing the original plan of Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, widow of the ex-President, for a quiet, simple funeral, official Washington, headed by President Hoover, will attend the services at the Edwards Congregational Church here.

Senators, congressmen, governors, ambassadors, men and women of prominence, arrived to pay homage to a good American and good friend.

LANGHORNE AVIATRIX TELLS OF EXPERIENCES

Miss Lillian Perkins Addresses
Members of The Sosis

MRS. PALMER PRESIDES

REVIEW OF MAY NEWS

LANGHORNE, Jan. 7.—Miss Lillian Perkins, of this borough, was the guest speaker, at the session of Langhorne Sosis in the Library, here, Thursday.

Miss Perkins is an aviatrix, having secured her training in New York at Curtiss-Wright aviation field. Later she was employed in the Curtiss-Wright air service, and more recently Miss Perkins was hostess at the Trenton airport. Prior to this the Langhorne woman was manager of the Betsy Ross Airport at Orange City, Florida. The Betsy Ross Corps was formed in readiness for an emergency need.

Miss Perkins' talk on aviation, covering as it did the history of flying, the high lights of the profession itself, and her own experiences in the air, was fascinating.

The program for the day was in charge of the Book Section, of which Mrs. Horace Palmer is chairman. Mrs. Palmer prefaced her presentation of the speaker with a brief review of "Night Flight" by Antoine de St. Exupery, a gripping story of the air mail told by one who was himself a pilot, and so conversant with the gamut of emotions experienced as one faces the mystery of darkness and space alone.

FIFTEEN MORE PRISONERS IN 1932 THAN IN 1931

Record Shows Decrease Over
Number Committed in 1928

JAIL IS WELL KEPT

During the year 1932 there were 529 prisoners committed to the Bucks County Prison, an increase of 15 over the previous year and a decrease of 35 over 1928. On an average there are 500 prisoners committed annually.

For 15 years Grant Myers has been Head Keeper of the prison and during that period, grand jury after grand jury have commended the careful and efficient management of the prison. During that period, Head Keeper Myers has committed or helped to commit approximately 7500 prisoners.

"Is it any wonder a fellow spending a great portion of fifteen years behind a prison wall and dealing with as many as 1500 prisoners hardly recognizes his old friends when he sees them on the street," said Head Keeper Myers when he was interviewed concerning prison affairs of 1932.

"It's a great life if you do not weaken," he said, "but there are many who weaken. Personally, I like the work of a Head Keeper and it is indeed interesting."

Incidentally, Head Keeper Myers pointed out that the percentage of prisoners who have escaped from the County Prison and have not been captured during the past fifteen years, is extremely low. Chances are very slim for the prisoner who might have designs on scaling the wall to seek liberty.

Only two escaped prisoners in 14 years have not been recaptured. One was Robert A. Wood, who scaled the wall with the aid of a hand-made ladder on Feb. 14, 1919, after serving three months of a four-month sentence on a charge of larceny. He disappeared at 6 o'clock in the morning from the prison bake shop and has never been seen since by the police. The other escaped prisoner is David H. Ryan, who escaped on May 9, 1923, after he had been arrested in Mexico and brought back to Bucks county by the Sheriff and sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary.

The annual report of Head Keeper Myers shows that 26 prisoners were carried over from 1932 on January 1 this year. During 1932 fifty-seven persons were sentenced by the Court to prison terms and 139 were sentenced by Justice of the Peace. Thirty-nine were released on parole during the year.

The prison docket shows that eight were sentenced to the Huntingdon Reformatory, fifteen were sentenced to the Eastern State Penitentiary, one was committed to Glen Mills, five were committed to the Allentown State Hospital and four were committed to the Norristown State Hospital.

There were two deaths at the County Prison during 1932. Over 500 tons of stone were crushed during the year by the prisoners, by hand, in the prison yards. Practically all of this stone was used in the construction of highways.

WORLD'S HARDEST JOB

When former President Coolidge left the White House almost four years ago the nation talked hopefully of having his sage advice and unofficial services (made especially valuable by his long public service) for many years to come. In cutting those years to four death dealt the nation a severe blow.

None can say with certainty that Calvin Coolidge shortened his life by serving his state and nation, but all can say that he would have gladly made this sacrifice for his country. Public life was his life.

Though he was not a big, vigorous man there was that old New England ruggedness about him which made him appear to stand up well under the relentless drive of high public office. The tremendous responsibilities and many disappointments of the presidency seemed never to faze him during those years in Washington but they must have worn out that strong heart.

America is not kind to her chief executives. Few long survive the stress and strain of four or eight years in the White House. Some have even died in office. There has been only one, John Adams, that stout colonial who lived a quarter of a century after Jefferson succeeded him in the presidency.

TIME FOR RETRENCHMENT

For officials of the Federal Treasury the new year could have started off much better, very much better. For these worried gentlemen it meant the close of the first half of the fiscal year, which would have been uneventful enough if it had not found the Treasury short by more than $1,150,000,000.

Unless the increased income taxes, which go into effect on March 15, and some other levies bring in a sudden flood of revenue, or Congress and the administration cut expenses or find new revenue, the fiscal year will end with a deficit variously estimated at from $1,500,000,000 to $2,300,000,000. This is the prospect that is putting lines under the eyes of Treasury officials, who feel a certain responsibility for balancing the budget.

Congress, the White House and the Treasury Department joined hands and brains in balancing the budget last spring. Individually and collectively they failed because of an excess of optimism. They overestimated the ability of the country to pay either out of business proceeds or individual incomes. No doubt all three were sincere in the conviction that they had balanced the budget.

Has the Government learned the one and indisputable lesson of this fiasco in national financing? That the budget must be balanced by unloading part of the tax burden through government retrenchment, not by loading more taxes on the backs of business and the people?

There may be depression here, but things are booming in China.

Nothing is certain except that it won't happen as the experts predict.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE by WARWICK DEEPING

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Wolfe's face had grown keen and hugely intent. He watched this little man and felt a gradual and grim respect for him. Josiah Crabbe was what he pretended to be, a bit of granite, hard, clean, and solid. Men hated him—the men who were weaker and less sincere than he was—and he cherished this hatred, knowing it to be the surest homage that he could receive.

They stared at each other for a moment without speaking. Then Josiah Crabbe leaned back in his chair.

"Thirty years ago they tried to break me, to get me out of Navestock."

Wolfe nodded.

"They couldn't do it. I had my piece of rock. It was a small bit then. But they broke their picks on it. They are going to break their picks—on you."

He leaned forward with a certain dramatic fierceness, his hands gripping the arms of the chair.

"Do you take me? You are going to stay in Navestock!"

"How is that?"

"Because I have been waiting for you for the last ten years."

"My dear sir."

"I say that I have been waiting for you for the last ten years. That's plain, isn't it? Not an easy matter to find me, I tell you. Good Gosh! Just think of the flabby folk who swell themselves out to look big and solid. All wind! I want a man who has fought, who has roughed it—who can hit. A strong body and a long arm—you've got 'em. I'm a good judge."

"Thank you."

Josiah Crabbe whisked up his handkerchief, and waved it as a bull-fighter might brandish a red flag.

"See! Turrell and the whole crew, ready to charge you out of the town. Hang it all—are they going to do just as they please? I've been waiting to fight 'em for ten years. I was in no hurry; I could bide my time. I knew I could force this on some day. The town has been hanging rotten ripe for years. Old Threadgold knows it. You know it. I say that you are going to stay."

Wolfe tilted his chair on its hind legs, his face half-grim, half-amused.

"You may say that, Mr. Crabbe, but the staying is a different matter."

"You are going to attend me."

"If necessary."

"I say that you are going to attend me."

"What about Threadgold?"

"Threadgold be damned! I have not had a pill from him for twenty years. Do you think I would have that bag of chicken food inside my house! He's Turrell's man; he's in with the rest of them. You are my doctor. See?"

"No, I don't."

"Where's your objection?"

"You don't need a doctor."

"Don't I? Can't I have a man to look after me if I want him? Confound it, it's my affair! Look here, you will visit me three times a week at a guinea a visit."

"I can't do it."

"I say you shall."

"The money wouldn't be earned."

"Man, you're a fool! Don't you see I want to give you a start here without flicking you a cursed pride? If an old man wants to do a thing—can't a young man grant him the favour?"

TWIN BILL DIVIDED BY BRISTOL HIGH, ALUMNI

(By Oscar Corn)

Taking the lead in the opening minutes of the game and consistently maintaining it, the Cardinal and Gray five of Bristol High, handed the Alumni a severe setback, when they met in their annual tilt, last night, on the high school court. The final tot of the whistle found Coach Dougherty's minions leading the "old grads" 34 to 21.

Although this was the opening game of the season, the high school five worked their plays, and played in mid-season form. The alumni team played gamely but the school boys had a smoother offensive.

Cole was high's high scorer, with four double-deckers and two fouls, while Britton carried laurels for the alumni with six points.

Although fighting hard from beginning to end, Coach Diemer's fillies were defeated by the alumni sextet, 31 to 8.

The alumni had a superior team in comparison to the cardinal and gray sextet. It was a team composed totally of stars, while the high school team was inexperienced and very unsteady.

Enid Whyatt was the star shot of the evening, getting nine twin pointers. Santo was high scorer for Bristol with five points.

Y. M. A. DECLARED FIRST-HALF WINNERS

At a meeting of the managers and directors of the Bristol Basketball League held last night in the Knights of Columbus home, the first half of

DO YOU KNOW THAT "Larry" David, former Bristol High football, baseball and basketball star, is playing a great game of basketball in the Ogdensburg, N. Y., City League with the Hawthorne quintet? His brother, "Bud," and Jim Roache are doing a fine job of officiating in the Bristol Basketball League this season... they will not stand for any monkey business among the players... the first sign of rough stuff and the offending player is warned... the next time he is caught... out of the game he goes!

A TALL STORY... A day or so ago we told about the introduction of the curve ball into baseball in this town... well, we received a letter from one of our readers who takes exception to what we wrote... He said that the first curve ball was tossed by a third baseman in the good old days... (this pitcher only needed seven other men on his team... his curve was so wide that the catcher stood on first base and when the ball was tossed to the batter... who invariably missed the pitch completely, the catcher was always in position to catch the ball... and if by any chance the batter did smack the onion he was usually out at first anyway... some curver, eh, what?) the circuit was conceded to the Young Men's Association basketball team. This club was undefeated and ran up a string of seven victories.

Several other changes marked the meeting. The Bristol Aces changed managers, Frank Fields replacing Raymond Pieo. The name of the club was changed from the Bristol Aces to the St. Ann's Aces. Anthony Nicolls remained as a director of the team and the same players were named to its roster.

The managers were notified that January 20th is the closing date for the signing of players for the second half race.

Third Ward announced the releasing of W. Gosline, Harry Kendig and W. Huber and the signing of James Massilla, Francis Corrigan and Henry Morgan. The Hawks released W. Miller and Henry Morgan and signed Harry Kendig. The Knights of Columbus released Francis Corrigan and signed Edward McIlvaine.

The managers and directors present at the meeting were: Paterson Parchment Paper Company, John Parella; Hawks, Harry Jenks; Aces, Raymond Pieo, Frank Fields, and Anthony Nicolls; Knights of Columbus, Michael Keating and Edward McIlvaine; Odd Fellows, James Rubincam and Verdin Watt; Third Ward, George Herman and Nevin McGinley, Hibernians, Neal McDermitt and James Dolan, Y. M. A., John Smoyer and Dayton Fegely.

Distinguished mourners rubbed elbows with the townsfolk in the queue which passed through the church to view the remains before the services. In peaceful dignity, the body lay in state in a solid bronze casket made rich by its lack of ornamentation. Engraved upon the lid of the casket was the inscription:

CALVIN COOLIDGE
1872-1933

He was dressed in formal morning costume with frock coat, striped trousers, winged collar and black four-in-hand tie.

Upon the third finger of his left hand he wore an intaglio ring, the gift of Mrs. Coolidge.

His hands were crossed. His features were composed.

The Edwards Congregationalist Church, named after the Puritan minister, Jonathan Edwards, will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its organization the end of this month.

The front row of its ash and walnut pews were banked with floral offerings enough to fill a garden. The second row of pews were reserved for Mrs. Coolidge, John Coolidge, her son, and his wife, Mrs. Florence Trumbull Coolidge, daughter of a former Connecticut governor.

This same row, on the left hand side, was reserved for President Hoover.

The services will be conducted by the new, young pastor of the church, it will be his first important ceremony. He is the Rev. Albert J. Penner, 30, formerly of Mount Lake, Minn. He has been pastor for only four months.

The program of the services follows:

Organ prelude: "Going Home," Thomas Auld, organist.

Invocation.

Hymn: "Lead Kindly Light," by the church quartet.

Reading of the Scripture.

Prayer.

Hymn: "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go," by the church quartet.

Benediction.

Organ postlude.

Mrs. Coolidge selected the hymns for the services. They were the favorite ones of the former President.
